"Today's church wants to be raptured from responsibility."

"Entertainment is the devil's substitute for joy."

"Are the things you are living for worth Christ dying for?"

"If weak in prayer, we are weak everywhere."

*"If Jesus had preached the same message that ministers
preach today, He would never have been crucified."*

"The Church used to be a lifeboat rescuing the perishing. Now she is a cruise ship recruiting the promising."

*"God pity us that after years of writing, using mountains
of paper and rivers of ink, exhausting flashy terminology about the biggest revival meetings in history, we are still faced with gross corruption in every nation, as well as with the most prayerless church age since Pentecost."*

Leonard Ravenhill (1907-1994) was an evangelist, preacher, and author from England who widely addressed the need for prayer and revival in the Church, challenging it to return to its roots in the early Church as chronicled in the Book of Acts.

Born in Leeds, England, Ravenhill was educated at Cliff College and learned under the ministry of Samuel Chadwick. Ravenhill studied Church history and became particularly interested in revival. He held evangelistic meetings during the Second World War that drew large crowds with many converts dedicating themselves to foreign missions. Ravenhill married an Irish nurse named Martha in 1939, and they had three sons together. In 1950, they moved to America and held tent revivals and evangelistic meetings throughout the United States. Ravenhill took a home near Lindale, Texas, in the 1980s and taught at Last Days Ministries. He also taught at Bethany College of Missions in Minnesota. He died in 1994 and is interred at Garden Valley Cemetery in Garden Valley, Texas. Ravenhill was a close friend of pastor and author A.W. Tozer and influenced many notable preachers and evangelists, including David Wilkerson, Charles Stanley, and Ravi Zacharias. He wrote numerous books, including Sodom Had No Bible and Why Revival Tarries.
